

Nate Bargatze

Nate Bargatze is just tearing it up on America's comedy circuit. He had knockout performances at SXSW, the Moontower Comedy Fest, and – one of his favorite gigs - has entertained the troops in Kuwait and Iraq. He was one of the first comedians invited onto The Tonight Show with Jimmy Fallon. He's tagged by Marc Maron in Rolling Stone Magazine as "A comedian who should be big," and by Jim Gaffigan in Esquire as "One of the top up and coming comics." His debut CD "Yelled At By a Clown" hit number 2 on Billboard Top Ten Comedy. He's one of Variety's Ten Comics to Watch. His latest special, "Full Time Magic," hit number one on Comedy Central.

And now he's flying in from his Nashville home for one night only – to host the ARDA Awards Gala.
